15 March 2012

Plumpton College

Generating Income from Coppice Woodland

This one day course organised by Woodnet and Plumpton College at Flimwell is designed for anyone interested in generating income from coppice woodland by selling or using produce.

Learn about the uses of different coppice trees for fencing, charcoal, crafts, logs, construction; find out which lengths and sizes are required for different products, and learn how to harvest, store, market and sell your wood.

Tim Saunders from Rother Forestry will guide you through the process from cutting, to storage and sales. Tim has a wide range of experience in the harvesting, storage and marketing of coppice and woodland products in the South East.

The next course is Thursday 15 March 2012

10.00 – 4.30 at the
Woodland Enterprise Centre,
Flimwell, East Sussex, TN5 7PR.

Course fee £90

If you work in farming, forestry or production horticulture in the South East, you may be eligible for a subsidised fee of £27 - please enquire when booking.
